Say hello to the most satisfying way to answer a call in the 21st century. This gloriously retro handset drags your smartphone kicking and screaming back to the golden age of desk-bound drama, when calls felt important and cords were coiled. Thoughtfully designed for more meaningful conversations, it helps you disconnect from distractions and actually reconnect with the human on the other end. Plugs effortlessly into your smartphone, laptop or tablet via USB-C. No charging, no pairing, no set-up, no “can you hear me now?”, just plug in and talk. The high-quality microphone and speaker make you sound crisp and clear whether you’re on a call, a Zoom, Teams or FaceTime meeting, or pretending you’re Donald Draper. The built-in pick-up and hang-up button lets you end conversations with a satisfyingly decisive click. It’s comfortable to hold (your hand will thank you during long calls) and works with any USB-C device, including iPhone. Made with recycled materials and unapologetically theatrical, this is less “hands-free convenience” and more “I need to talk to you, now”, turning even the dullest call into a small, stylish act of rebellion against modern communication. if you’re going to take a call, you might as well enjoy the theatre of it.
